

Superintendent (Ret.) Chris Kellett recently completed a 32 year distinguished career as a police officer with the Edmonton Police Service (1981 to 2013). He started as a constable, and quickly moved up the ranks to detective, sergeant, staff sergeant, inspector, and superintendent / chief information officer.

Chris is a recognized national expert in the areas of 9-1-1 and emergency services dispatch, having spent over 20 years of his career working at the operational, technical, and management levels of these mission critical operations. This also includes all aspects of project management for computer aided dispatch, records management, fixed/mobile radio, mobile computer terminals, and enterprise wide telephony. He provides advice / consultation across Canada.

Since 2002, Chris was a sought after member of the senior management team, entrusted to lead the key areas of human resources, information technology, and as interim deputy chief in charge of corporate services (finance, informatics, human resources).

In addition, Chris was utilized on a regular basis for labour relations and mediation matters. As well, he has 15 years of training and participation with audit and finance responsibilities as an elected member of several Alberta Credit Unions.

Chris has participated with and led numerous municipal, provincial, & national committees in all of the disciplines detailed above; He is on the current executive of the Alberta E9-1-1 Advisory Association (AEAA), as well as serving his 6th term as the elected chair of the CRTC Emergency Services [E9-1-1] Working Group (ESWG); He is the current lead for next generation 9-1-1 in Canada.